Arbitration Compact Is Concluded.

Between Great Britain and Germany Is Now Announced.

Whole-Souled Appreciation of It From Opposition Press in London.

LONDON, July 12.—The announcement of the arbitration treaty between Great Britain and Germany was signed yesterday by the German Foreign Minister, Count von Kiderling, and the British Foreign Secretary, Lord Lansdowne. The treaty, which was signed at London, is a complete and not a partial agreement, and it is a pleasant surprise to the English public. It was against such an agreement that the opposition press in London had been warning the news of the arbitration treaty is a welcome relief with palpable dislike or with some disappointment.

CAMPAIGN NOW OPEN.

Sheehan's Return Starts Democratic Machine at Esopus Moving.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 12.—The return here of W. P. Sheehan from the St. Louis convention yesterday marks the opening of the Democratic National campaign, which will largely be conducted from Esopus. Actual plans for the campaign have not been completed, but it is probable that Judge Parker will remain at home most of the summer and fall.

His friends say that Judge Parker will advise on the National questions of importance which may come up during the campaign. Mr. Sheehan expects to entertain many political visitors at his summer home at Tweed, between Esopus and West Park. No details have been fixed for the meeting of the National committee on notification, but will be in about two weeks. In view of suggestions made that Mr. Sheehan be selected for national chairman it was said today that he was not anxious for the position, believing that he can be of more value to Judge Parker in other ways. As chairman of the National committee he would find himself hampered by much routine business, which would interfere with the work he would otherwise do. Mr. Sheehan and his friends, it is understood, hope the matter will be amicably settled.

SALE OF FRIAR LANDS.

Philippine Commission Provides for Lease or Purchase of Property.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The bureau of insular affairs of the War department has issued a copy of an enactment of the Philippine commission providing for the administration and temporary leasing and sale of the lands commonly known as friar lands, for the purchase of which the Government of the Philippine islands has contracted.

It provides for surveys, and permits the present occupants of any such lands either to buy or lease them, leases to be for three years and at a reasonable rental. Those wishing to purchase may do so at the actual cost to the Government, and will be allowed ten years to pay for the same in equal annual installments, with interest on deferred payments at the rate of 4 percent. All unoccupied lands will be offered for sale by the Government to other parties.

The act further provides that all irrigation works common to all properties shall remain under the exclusive control of the Government of the islands. All money derived from the leasing of these lands is to constitute a trust fund for the payment of principal and interest of the bonds issued by the Philippine Government for the purpose of raising money to pay the purchase price of these friar lands.

PARKER'S DECLARATION.

David B. Hill Gives Out Interview Regarding Gold Standard.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12.—David B. Hill tonight gave out the following interview on Judge Parker's declaration for the gold standard: "I am gratified that the convention so enthusiastically endorsed the brave and manly stand of Judge Parker and that the whole country has so favorably received it. The party is in the position in which I wished it to be, having endorsed the present gold standard. The financial question is now entirely out of the campaign and the Republicans are powerless to drag it in. The road to a successful campaign has been cleared."

DIPLOMATS ARE CONCERNED.

VIENNA, July 12.—The renewed revolutionary outbreaks in Macedonia are causing concern in diplomatic circles here. It is said that Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, during his recent visit to Vienna, expressed anxiety regarding affairs in the Balkans, and that he was apprehensive lest a decisive defeat of Russia in the far East would render it difficult to prevent Bulgarians from making common cause with the Macedonian revolutionists.

MINE WORKERS MEET.

Convention Meets in Pittsburg, Pa. Behind Closed Doors.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 12.—At this morning's session of the United Mine Workers' convention at Pittsburg, the auditing committee made its report and various committees were appointed. The convention, to be held at the Hotel Crumpler, was opened by Judge Parker, who referred to the miners' union there. The convention was in session nearly all day with closed doors.

The reported refusal of President Roosevelt to meet a committee sent from the Central Labor Union was not brought before the convention, but it was discussed by the delegates outside of the hall. Many expressed indignation.

Barry is writing a modern comedy in which Miss Terry will be seen, and the author is greatly delighted that the part of his new heroine will be created by the distinguished American actress. ### FIGURES FROM CENSUS.

Special Report on Number of Persons Pursuing Gainful Occupations.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—A special report of the census bureau on occupations shows that in continental United States the total number of persons engaged in gainful occupations in 1900 was 29,042,313, which was one-half of the population 19 years of age and over and nearly two-fifths of the entire population.

The total number comprises 22,684,455 men, 4,533,491 women and 1,778,367 children, of whom 1,264,411 were boys and 453,956 girls. Those of foreign birth aggregate 3,831,329, or one-fifth of the total number of the gainful workers, and the statistics show that the emigration of twenty years ago has not increased the proportion of the foreign-born in the working population of the country. Those of foreign parentage aggregate 11,356,391, or over 38 percent, almost equally divided between immigrants and children of immigrants.

Manufacturing, trade and transportation and the professions show an increasing number of workers of each sex, while the agricultural class represents a diminishing proportion.

WHERE IS MESSAGE?

Telegram Sent by Convention to Parker Not Received.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 12.—It is beginning to be a source of some wonder as to what has become of the telegram to Judge Parker, which was formally adopted by the St. Louis convention Saturday night. It has not yet reached Esopus and Judge Parker knows its tenor only from the Associated Press bulletin, which was telephoned him that night, and from the newspapers of the next day. It may have gone astray, as did the Hearst telegram, which reached Judge Parker only after it had been duplicated twenty-four hours after it was filed at Chicago.

Judge Parker sent to former President Cleveland this afternoon a letter in reply to the latter's telegram of congratulation and commendation. The letter is of considerable length, but its contents have not been made public.

Fast Train Strikes a Buckboard Containing Four People.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., July 12.—The Santa Fe passenger train from Orange tonight struck a buckboard containing four people at a grade crossing in Arlington, below Riverside, while running forty miles an hour. The occupants were Frank Mazzoni, a rancher, his wife, son and daughter. The son, 10 years of age, was instantly killed and the body was thrown seventy feet from the crossing. The father was injured internally. Mrs. Mazzoni sustained a broken leg, while the little girl was badly injured.

DELUGE AT BUTTE.

Copper City Visited by Heaviest Rain Storm in Its History.

BUTTE, Mont., July 12.—The heaviest rain in the history of Butte for the time of the downpour fell here this evening, one inch being measured from 1:30 to 6 o'clock. Drains were ineffective and the streets were swept by raging torrents, doing considerable damage to sidewalks and property and filling hundreds of cellars. The washing out of a fill on the B. & O. P. railroad delayed traffic several hours, while telegraph, telephone and street car services were also greatly interfered with for a time. Constant lightning and the darkness of night made the scene an impressive one. No estimate has yet been made of the damage, but it will amount to several thousands.

It Was His.

A small boy in a town not far from New York was telling his mother of a mishap which had occurred to a playmate of his. The youngster, it appeared, had been regarding himself with one of those large marble-like candies which are a particular delight of childhood, and in a moment of excitement it slipped down and stuck in his throat. But, said the narrator, they succeeded in relieving him. "Oh," said his mother, "you got it out, didn't you?"

"Now," was the impatient answer, "we shoved it down; it was his, wasn't it?"—Harper's Weekly.

This magnificent after cloth, which is to be seen in St. Fideswides church, London, has a most interesting history. For ten years the woman who presented the cloth to the church and her daughter were engaged in embroidering it. At the end of that time the figure of Christ had been filled with silk and gold thread embroidery, only the hair of Christ remained to be filled in. Then the daughter died and the mother used the dead child's hair to complete the wonderful embroidery.

Disease From Sunlight.

While the rays of the sun possess a stimulating and beneficial effect in disease, and can be used with advantage as a therapeutic agent, they also may act injuriously and cause disease, says Harper's Weekly. That there is a difference in the therapeutic value between the active rays, or those located at the violet end of the spectrum, and the red rays, was appreciated by Plinius, and the former were used in the treatment of such skin diseases as lupus, vulgaris, or tuberculosis of the skin, while the latter were found effective in cases of smallpox.

One of the most recent researches in this department is by Prof. Ferni, and is given in a late number of the Archiv fuer Hygiene. In these experiments a large number of human subjects were exposed to direct sunlight for varying periods, and in a large percentage of cases it was found that there resulted the following set of symptoms: Cephalalgia (headache), dryness of the nasal mucosa, shuffling, coryza (cold in the head), pharyngitis, soreness, slight fever, dryness of the throat, fever, pseudo-influenza, constipation, insomnia, epistaxis (nose bleed), and various pains. From this list of symptoms experienced by his patients, and from the observed color changes of certain diseases and meteorological conditions, Ferni concludes that exposure to the sun's rays is a predisposing factor in coryza, influenza, hay fever and epistaxis, and that the same factor, notwithstanding the resulting ill effects only a few more than half (55 percent) of the subjects found the treatment agreeable, the remainder distinctly enjoying it. While such experiments cannot be taken as conclusive that the sun acts as a cause of disease, nevertheless they seem to indicate that there is room for further investigation of the subject, and it may be that in the future the range of phototherapy will be broadened and that stroboscopy will be arranged so as to supply light or darkness or rays of any desired color or wave length as may be required for the disease under treatment.

Roscoe Conkling's Big Fee.

It is said that one day, when Roscoe Conkling was beginning to attain some measure of success, he dropped into the office of Charles O'Connor of New York, then one of the leaders in this bar. "What's the trouble?" asked the latter, as Conkling excitedly paced the floor. "I've just been subjected to the worst insult I have ever received. This is the first time a client ever objected to my fee. You know I demand $10,000 for an action, and put in some tremendous work for him. He was convicted at the trial, but we couldn't help it, and I took the case to the Supreme court and we lost there. Then on to the Supreme court and that affirmed the conviction and he has been given a year. Now my fee only amounted to $2000, and the defendant actually had the audacity to grumble about it saying it's too high. What do you think about it?" said O'Connor, slowly. "Of course you did a lot of work and $2000 is not a big fee; but, to be frank with you, Mr. Conkling, my opinion is founded on mature consideration, in that he might have been convicted for less money."—Success.

Traits of the Japanese Soldier.

The most noticeable thing about the Japanese soldier is not connected with his actual military duties, though he performs these thoroughly, but rather the excellence of his conduct when off duty. They may be seen in numbers in the streets walking about casually, with happy, smiling faces, frequently two and two, holding each other's hands like little children. They never seem to be in a hurry, and even on the most festive and demoralizing occasions, I never saw a disreputable soldier, or a much more common sight to see the Japanese soldiers sitting talking to acquaintances and drinking tea at the side of the street, or else looking over books at the book stores. There are a thousand true stories of the Japanese army and navy which prove that the men who fight Japan's battles rank among the best soldiers of the world. Of all stories the heroism of a private named Harada, during the siege of Pingyang, made a most desperate resistance. Again and again the Japanese tried to storm the fort, but the massive walls were secured by a heavy iron bar, and they could not gain entrance. They were beaten back, but Harada stayed behind under the shelter of the battlements. While the enemy were triumphing over their victory, he quietly scaled the wall and slipped down into the Japanese lines. He was surrounded by a couple of hundred yelling Chinese. Before they realized who he was, he had shot a couple of them, and he had a third, the Chinese iron bar and swung the gate open. Then, for a few strenuous moments, he held the gate alone against the onslaught of the Chinese, until his comrades rushed up, cheering madly, and swarmed in and took the fort. He found Harada covered with blood and surrounded by a rampart of corpses, but alive and only slightly wounded. He was decorated by the Mikado and is today one of the national heroes of Japan.

In the march on Peking the Japanese, near the capital, made heroic efforts to dynamite a breach in the walls in order to enter the city. Suddenly one of the perfect hall of shrapnel greeted them, and Jap after Jap lost his life in the endeavor to scale the wall. Suddenly one of the "little beggars" gained the coveted vantage point, and although he well knew the explosion that would wreck the spot, he laid his own life must be snuffed out, did not hesitate for a second. A cloud of dust billowed up, and the wall fell, and where he had been standing, while the cloud had settled down his mate remained calmly in his place, and he remained forward through the gaping vent in the city's side, forward, ever forward, while the Chinese, shrinking away from the carnage that was to follow, abandoned their position to the allied troops.—From Alfred Stead's "Japan Today" and Other Books.

Time to Quit.

Ex-Secretary of the Navy John D. Long, in his book, "The New American Navy," gives an example of an examination of a midshipman for promotion in the days when practical seamanship and navigation were essential to a naval officer's knowledge of steel construction and electrical engineering.

"Tatnall, what would be your course, should you were off a lee shore, the wind blowing a gale, both canvas and rigging shot away, and your ship scudding rapidly toward the breakers?"

"Tatnall cannot say, because such a combination of disasters could possibly befall a ship in one voyage."

"Commodore, that, too, young gentleman, we must have your opinion, supposing such a case to have actually occurred."

"Tatnall—Well, sir—sails, all carried away, go down, sir—"

"Commodore—Aye, all—every rag."

"Tatnall—Anchor gone, too, sir."

"Commodore—Aye, not an uncommon case."

"Tatnall—No rudder, either?"

"Commodore—Aye, rudder, unshipped. (Tatnall drops his head despairingly in deep thought.) Come, sir, come, bear a hand about it. What would you do?"

"Tatnall (at last and desperate)—Well, I'd let the infernal tub go to the devil, where she ought to go, and I'd have Commodore (joyously)—Right, sir, perfectly right. That will do, sir. You will note that Mr. Tatnall has—"

Had to See Gorman First.

Senator Gorman's friends (and I fear know that his qualities as a leader are at least masterly, but how far they trust to his judgment may not be so well known to the reading public. One of the statesman's friends had a dream not so long ago, which he is telling, and it makes clear the whole Maryland political situation.

He was standing before his wife's gate and St. Peter was just under the door when he saw the venerable warden called the name of the new arrival, and proceeded to look up the record in a great book. "Then he said, 'Enter.'"

The Marylander hesitated. He looked all around him, and he saw that he had not been down to the open gate.

"Why do you hesitate?" asked the saint.

"Well, I hope it's all right," said the other slowly, "but I do wish I could have a word with Gorman before taking so important a step." "New York Times."
